Session I: Ireland's Role in Responding to the International Refugee and Migrant Crisis

Frances Fitzgerald T.D., Tánaiste and Minister for Justice and Equality

Frances Fitzgerald TD was appointed Tánaiste and Minister for Justice and Equality on 6 May 2016. She was appointed the Minister for Justice and Equality in May 2014 and previously served as Minister for Children and Youth Affairs from March 2011. She represents the constituency of Dublin Mid-West.

As Minister for Justice and Equality, Frances has been actively involved in delivering the Government's comprehensive programme.

In 2014, Frances oversaw commencement of Garda recruitment for the first time since 2009 and has increased investment in vehicles, and ICT for Gardai.

She introduced legislation for the Marriage Equality referendum. On 23rd May, Ireland became the first country in the world to vote in a referendum to introduce an equal right to civil marriage for same-sex couples.

Frances has overseen the enactment of the Children and Family Relationships Act which provides for the most comprehensive reform of family law since the foundation of the State.

As Ireland's first senior Minister for Children and Youth Affairs, Frances led a complete reform of child protection and welfare system in Ireland. She oversaw the successful Children's Referendum in 2012; she established Tusla, a dedicated Child and Family Agency; she oversaw the introduction of Children First Legislation, putting these guidelines on a statutory footing and other major improvement on the promotion, regulation and enforcement of standards in early years and childcare settings.

Frances trained as a social worker and family therapist and worked in inner-city London and Dublin for 20 years. Frances was motivated to go into politics chairing the National Women's Council and the Women's Political Association.

David Donoghue
Ambassador, Co-facilitator for the UN Summit on Refugees and Migrants and the New York Declaration.

David Donoghue has been Ambassador and Permanent Representative of Ireland to the United Nations since 2013. In 2016 he served as co-facilitator (with Jordan) for the global Summit on migration and refugee issue, which took place at the UN in New York on 19 September 2016. In 2014-15 he served as co-facilitator (with Kenya) of major UN negotiations which led to the adoption of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development in September 2015. Prior to his appointment as Permanent Representative to the UN.

Ambassador Donoghue held the position of Political Director of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade in Dublin from 2009-2013. He previously served as Irish Ambassador to Germany (2006-2009), Irish Ambassador to Austria and the Vienna-based UN agencies (2004-2006) and Irish Ambassador to the Russian Federation, with side accreditations to Belarus, Georgia, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan (1999-2001). From 2001 to 2004, Ambassador Donoghue was Director-General of the Irish Government's development cooperation programme.

He also has extensive experience in Anglo-Irish relations, and was closely involved in the negotiation of both the Anglo-Irish Agreement (1995) and the Good Friday Agreement (1998). He served as Irish head of the Anglo-Irish Secretariat in Belfast from 1995-1999. From 1977-1991, he had postings in various Irish Embassies. An Irish national, Ambassador Donoghue holds a BA (Hons) in French and an MA in German from the National University of Ireland.

George Moschos
Greek Ombudsman for Children's Rights

George Mochos studied Law in Athens and Criminology (M.Phil) in London and was trained in the fields of adult education, youth work, self-awareness and drama for children. Since 1984 he has been working in Greece for the defence of children's rights, prevention of young persons' social exclusion, youth empowerment, children's expression through drama and adult education. He has participated in the management of many national and international networks and projects, focusing on children and youth rights. In 2003 he was appointed as the first Deputy Ombudsman for Children's Rights in Greece and was re-appointed three times in this position. In 2006 he was elected as Chairman of the European Network of Ombudsmen for Children. He meets continuously with children and professionals working with them, trying to promote understanding and respect of children's rights.

Anastasia Crickley
Chairperson, UN Committee for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination

Anastasia Crickley is Chairperson of the UN Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD), Vice-President of the International Association for Community Development and Senior Lecturer Emeritus at Maynooth University where until September 2015 she led the Dept of Applied Social Studies, the longest standing Irish provider of professional education and study at all levels from outreach to doctoral, in Community Work and Youth Work.

Anastasia has always sought to reflect her academic interests in ongoing commitments to social justice and human rights causes which use an inclusive community development approach in their struggles. She is chairperson of Pavee Point National Traveller and Roma Centre, a founder and board member of the Migrants Rights Centre Ireland and chairperson of Community Work Ireland, was a founder of the Irish Commission for Prisoners Overseas and has been active in a number of local initiatives. At a European level she was a founder of the European Network against Racism, first chairperson of the EU Fundamental Rights Agency, Personal Representative of the OSCE Chairperson on Discrimination, and Irish member of the Council of Europe Framework Convention on National Minorities Advisory Committee.

As Chairperson of the CERD Anastasia has been particularly committed to ensuring that racial discrimination is named and addressed as a key current challenge to achieving peace and justice globally including for migrants and refugees. She has led CERD's contribution to the September 2016 New York Declaration on Migrants and Refugees and follow up to it, and continues to ensure that these issues as well as the intersectionality between racism and women's oppression is addressed in all CERD's work. She has also been active in work on UN Treaty Body Reform and in promoting nomination and election of women to them.

About the Commission

The Irish Human Rights and Equality Commission is Ireland's national human rights and equality institution.

We are an independent public body that accounts to the Oireachtas, with a mandate established under the Irish Human Rights and Equality Commission Act 2014 (IHREC Act 2014). The IHREC Act includes and further enhances the functions of the former Irish Human Rights Commission and the former Equality Authority.

Our purpose is to protect and promote human rights and equality in Ireland and build a culture of respect for human rights, equality and intercultural understanding in the State.

Our work is determined independently by the fifteen members of the Commission who were appointed by our Head of State, President Michael D. Higgins, in 2014. The diverse membership of the Commission broadly reflects the nature of Irish society.

We work in a variety of ways to protect and promote human rights and equality in Ireland.

The work of the Commission ranges from working at the policy level to review the effectiveness of human rights and equality law, policy and practice in the State and within public bodies, to working with communities and civil society to monitor and report on people's real life experiences of human rights and equality on the ground.

Our legal powers include giving practical help, including legal assistance to help people defend their rights, and contributing to legal cases (amicus curiae) that deal with someone's equality or human rights.

Whether we are addressing individual concerns, engaging with government or public bodies on policy and practice issues or raising awareness with public audiences on human rights and equality, our task is to build a fair and inclusive society that protects and promotes human rights and equality.

Our vision is of an inclusive Ireland where human rights and equality are respected, protected and fulfilled for everyone, everywhere.
